Gardner, Bib. Rosicruciana, No. 552. Collation (lxviii) + 64 pages.

Isaac Newton's copy, with his signature, "Is. Newton, donum Mri Doyley," on fly-leaf, followed by an interesting note in his hand regarding the origin of the Rosicrucian Fraternity (see facsimile). On page 4 is another note in his hand on the wise men of Arabia and C. R.'s visit to Damascus.

Books from the library of Isaac Newton, with notes in his hand, are extremely rare. In this instance his interest in the Rosicrucian question is probably the only one on record.

Gardner, Bib. Rosicruciana, No. 104. Collation (x) + 134 pages.

In 1618 an entirely unknown person—Mundus Christophori Filius—produced a polemic in quarto, called obscurely enough Grease for the Fall ("Speck Auff der Fall"), . . . which brought forth a reply, also anonymous, but ascribed to Irenæus Agnostus. . . . This was 'Speculum Constantiæ.' . . . Mundus rejoined in 1619 with 'Roseæ Crucis Frater Thrasonico-Mendax.' . . . The result in due course was 'Vindiciæ Rhodostaurotiæ,' issued by Irenæus Agnostus in 1619 and described as a radical denial of the insults . . . spread abroad by Mundus, son of Christophorus, against the Illustrious Society. The debate closed at this point.—Waite's Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross, page 248.

WILLIAM COWPER'S SET, WITH HIS MANUSCRIPT ANNOTATIONS.

- 1912 WORKS, with a GLOSSARY, carefully printed from the Oxford Edition in Quarto, 1744 [edited by SIR THOMAS HANMER], with Chandos portrait and monument plate (only), 9 vols, 12mo., orig. mottled calf (joints weak), Printed for J. and P. Knapton, S. Birt, T. Longman, &c., 1747 £50/-/-

An interesting association item, having belonged to William Cowper, the Poet, containing some corrections or explanations of obsolete words, in his handwriting.

In all 49 pages have been selected and nearly 100 words are treated.

A reference to the Glossary at the end of the ninth and last volume (which, although uniform, has been added later to the set) shows that, for the most part, the words explained by Cowper are additional thereto. In the few instances where this is not so, they are alternative explanations or entire corrections to those given.

In addition to the corrections, each volume, with the exception of the last, has the signature "Wm. Cowper 1797" on title; his bookplate inside front covers, and crest in gilt on the backs of the binding.

This set has an interesting pedigree: It was originally owned by Cowper's uncle, Ashley Cowper (autograph on title of Vol. 1), then by his cousin [Lady] Harriet Hesketh, with her autograph inside each cover. From William Cowper, the Poet, the set appears to have passed to John Hardy, who notes the loss of the last volume in 1802, and finally to Thomas Hill Mortimer in 1833. The latter has written on verso of title to Vol. 1: "Note, each volume contains some corrections or explanations of obsolete words, in Cowper's handwriting."
